

Historic, Archive Document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices.

March 21, 1928

EXTENSION SERVICE
OFFICE OF COOPERATIVE EXTENSION WORK, WASHINGTON, D. C.

THIS LOOKS GOOD

Visualizing The Convenient Kitchen

Reuben Brigham, Agriculturist,
In Charge, Visual Instruction and Editorial Work

In response to urgent requests from home demonstration workers throughout the country for illustrated material visualizing the convenient kitchen, the Bureau of Home Economics announces that a series of posters on the subject is now ready for purchase.

This series consists of eight posters, 16 by 20 inches in size, printed on cloth backed paper. The illustrations are half tones of drawings prepared by Mrs. M. B. Sawrie of the Office of Cooperative Extension Work. The type is clear and legible making them suitable for use in groups of from 20 to 25 persons.

The series opens with an introductory poster followed by posters on "Light and Ventilation," "Walls, Floors, and Woodwork" and "The Large Kitchen Made Convenient." The last four deal with the grouping of equipment into working centers, well related to each other and to the room as a whole.

These posters may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents of the Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., for 50 cents a set. Ask for "The Convenient Kitchen" posters. No copies are available for free distribution.

Original distribution to all extension directors, State and assistant State home demonstration agents and leaders, State home management specialists, and county home demonstration agents.

THIS LOOKS GOOD